

Don't miss this virtual event

Prescribed Grazing on San Diego Rangelands

Thursday, October 22, from 12 noon to 2 pm

Join us online, be inspired, and learn how grazing can benefit both livestock production and the grassland ecosystem. Plus, get your questions answered live by experts at our no-cost, virtual panel discussion!

Get Access to Prerecorded Presentations:

Upon registration, you will receive access to these prerecorded talks, in preparation for the panel discussion on October 22.

Michael White - Science Director, Emeritus of Tejon Ranch Conservancy

Tejon Ranch is the largest private property grazed in California. Michael will present how he has worked with ranchers, landowners and conservationists to collaborate on management objectives.

A conversation between local ranchers Rob Paulin and John Austel

Rob is Manager of Corta Madera Ranch, which is part of a USDA funded research project investigating the use of Heritage Raramuri Criollo cattle.

John is the Owner of 4J Horse & Livestock Company and a recipient of a CDFA Prescribed Grazing Grant.

Lynn Huntsinger - Professor of Rangeland Ecology & Management, UC Berkeley

Lynn will discuss her latest research on the value of ecosystem services on rangeland.

Register by email or phone: ag@rcdsandiego.org | 619.562.0096

Panel Discussion:

Michael White – Science Director, Emeritus of Tejon Ranch Conservancy

Rob Paulin – Manager, Corta Madera Ranch

Tracie Nelson – South San Diego Reserve Manager, California Department of Fish and Wildlife

Dr. Chandra Richards – Conservation Ecologist, Resource Conservation District of Greater San Diego County

Lynn Huntsinger – Professor of Rangeland Ecology and Rangeland Management, UC Berkeley

John Austel – Owner of 4J Horse & Livestock Company

Lance Criley – Rangeland Management Specialist at USDA Forest Service

Sponsored by the Resource Conservation District of Greater San Diego County

RESOURCE CONSERVATION
DISTRICT
Greater San Diego County